

DM Messenger Script

Use this script to book 10 minute sales calls through Facebook Messenger, or Instagram DM

There will be 2 types of conversations that will be created through these online messengers:

The first is with accounts that have interacted with your content and can be seen as warm/inbound leads.

The second is by reaching out to new accounts that may or may not be following you, and are seen as cold/outbound leads.

In this script you will learn where to source warm leads and what to say to initiate the conversation, and how to reach out to new accounts to start conversations.

Ultimately the goal here is to book discovery calls for your business. Even if you don't book a discovery call right away, you can keep in contact with accounts that have engaged in conversation with you or your team to convert them at a later date after nurturing them with content.

INBOUND LEADS

An inbound lead would be someone who reaches out to you. They can ask you a question about fitness, respond to your story, or apply in your coaching application.

With inbound leads through social media, respond to their message and acknowledge the conversation, then lead the conversation to a discovery call.

User: “Hey ____ I have a question about fitness. I want to lose weight but I’m not sure what to eat, can you help me?”

(The inbound leads can be limitless, the skill is recognizing who can be converted to a potential client and they are not limited to fitness questions. Sometimes even an emoji story response can be turned into a discovery call. Practice with all types of leads to book them into calls).

You: “Thank you so much for reaching out! In order to lose weight you’ll want to make sure you eat in a caloric deficit. This can be done by tracking your nutrition intake or following a meal plan. Both of these options will help you stay on track with your fitness goals. If you dont mind me asking, what are youre goals? How much weight would you like to lose?”

At this point you'll begin gathering intelligence and ask the prospect questions in order to lead them to book a discovery call. More on this will be detailed later in this template.

With inbound leads through a coaching application, simply reach out to them to start the intelligence gathering phase:

You: “Hey ____, I just received your coaching application for (Your Program). I’m excited to get to know you and help you reach your goals! In order for us to get started I have a few quick questions I would like to ask. First off, what inspired you to apply for coaching?”

From here you can continue through the intelligence gathering phase of the DM script that will be demonstrated later in this template.

Another way to create an inbound lead is to make a call to action on instagram and say “DM me X to learn more”

The intention of this call to action is to get your ideal client to reach out to you. From here you can say.

You: “Thank you so much for reaching out. I cant wait to tell you more about XYZ. What inspired you to reach out?”

From here you can continue through the intelligence gathering phase of the DM script.

Second lets cover how to source warm leads for DM Outreach:

To learn this strategy in more detail, refer to the “Conversation Starters” lesson in the Personal Trainers Business Course.

An easy place to find leads to reach out to for your online coaching business is your instagram/facebook stories.

Simply scroll through the users who watch your stories. Look for any account who has already viewed your story who may be an ideal client.

Then engage with their content. Follow them (add them as a friend). Like a few of their posts. Comment on their pictures/posts.

Next you can either send them a message or respond to one of their stories.

If you sent them a direct message you can say:

You: “Hey___ thanks for watching my story! I noticed you were in my audience and I wanted to reach out. I love connecting with new people. How's your week been going so far?”

Or you can simply respond to their story with something relevant to their current situation.

The key here isn't to bombard them with a sales pitch right away. It's simply to open the conversation that you can then lead to a discovery call. Revealing too much information too soon might result in a closed door. Start with a quick friendly message to see if they are open for conversation, then lead them to the intelligence gathering phase.

If they are open to conversation and respond to your message, start to ask questions that will lead to a discovery call.

User: “Thank you for reaching out! My week has been going great so far! How about you?”

You: “That's great to hear! My week has been going great as well. I noticed you're into XYZ, how long have you been doing that for?”

User: “I've been doing that for 2 years, it's a passion of mine!”

You: “Thats awesome! It's always important to have a hobby you're passionate about. Personally I'm passionate about fitness if you couldn't tell. Have you been working on any fitness goals?”

From here you can move them into the intelligence gathering phase and schedule a discovery call at the end of the script.

To respond from someone off of your own instagram stories you can also include a poll, question box, quiz.

From here will be a group of people who have engaged with your content. This gives you an easy way to reach out to them in context of your coaching offer.

For example: If someone votes on a poll “YES” in response to a question you posted that said “Are you feeling stuck in your fitness journey?”, then you can easily reach out to them in response to that poll

You: “Hey ____ I noticed you voted on my poll that you are feeling stuck on your fitness journey. Where exactly do you feel stuck? I'd love to help.”

From here you can begin asking questions and move the prospect into the intelligence gathering phase of the DM script.

There are limitless possibilities to create engagement from instagram stories. Get creative and ask your audience questions that you can respond to and start conversations.

OUTBOUND LEADS

Cold leads are prospects that are not familiar with who you are or what you have to offer. These leads might be the most difficult to book a discovery call with right away and may need to be nurtured for a longer period of time to build trust with you.

You should still attempt to take them through the Dm Outreach script, but they may take a few conversations in order to push them all the way through for them to book a discovery call.

In order to find these accounts on instagram or facebook, simply search keywords related to your industry and niche.

Look through the search results and sift through who looks to be an ideal client of yours.

Accounts can also be found through hashtags your ideal client may use. For example: #weightloss for an ideal client looking to lose weight. Don't limit yourself to basic hashtags though, get creative and clever. Anything that your ideal client may be interested in will work.

For example, if your ideal client is a middle aged entrepreneur you can look for hashtags they may be searching or using. #workfromhome etc.

Great leads can be also found engaging with popular pages in your industry. For example: look through the comments and likes of an influencer in your industry. The people engaging with these accounts are active and interested in your niche.

Once you find an account of your ideal client start by engaging with their content.

Like a few of their posts, comment a relevant comment on their picture, respond to one of their stories. Make it relevant. There are too many bots out there that don't put any thought into this and people are trained to spot bullshit online. To stand out make your outreach message personal to them.

Also, do not spam them. Act genuinely as a normal person would.

The goal here is to open a conversation with them. If they like a few posts back, respond to a comment, or respond to a message that you sent from their story, then send them a message and start the conversation.

The best way to start a conversation with a cold lead is to engage with a piece of THEIR content.

You: "Wow dude! This is awesome. How long have you been doing X for?"

Or

You: “Whatsup man! I noticed you’ve been doing XYZ. Im very impressed! Keep up the good work”

Essentially, you just want to start the conversation and get them to respond.

Once they respond you can begin building rapport with small talk and start asking questions that will lead them to book a discovery call.

With these cold leads, they might not convert as fast as someone who is already familiar with you, your content, and your offer. So they may take a few conversations at different periods of time to build enough trust to get them on a call.

Don't get discouraged after 1 conversation. Keep knocking on their door.

After you open the conversation and the prospect replies, it's time to move them into the intelligence gathering phase.

During this phase, your goal is to build rapport by asking them questions and qualifying the lead into your program.

For more on this watch the "Dm Outreach" lesson inside the Personal Trainers Business Course.

The first question you want to ask is what their goal is.

Remember to always acknowledge the previous conversation and to add value before leading to the next question.

You: "That's amazing! I'm so glad to hear you're doing XYZ. If you don't mind me asking, what are your fitness goals? What would you like to achieve?"

Next discover what their challenge is.

You: "Losing 15 pounds is a great goal! I would love to help you achieve that. What do you feel is the biggest challenge you face when going after that goal?"

After you ask these rapport building questions and they qualify as a good fit for your program, offer a free call call. This is the next step in the sales process that will further your relationship with your prospect and will give you the opportunity to tell them more about your offer.

You: "I've actually worked with a handful of clients to help them reach the exact goal you're looking to achieve. I'd love to offer some free advice to help you get there. Would you be down to hop on a quick call?"

Make sure you position the call as a "free call for advice". When you mention your program or your interest in wanting to sign the prospect up as a client they will run the opposite direction as it screams "SALES".

Instead offer free advice. Once they're on the 10 minute call you can give them that free advice and then offer a second call in which you show them how they can achieve their goals. More on this in the discovery call script.

Based on their response you can book a ten minute call and proceed to the next step in the sales process.

If you lose the lead on the commitment to the call don't worry. Simply flag their account or keep track of them in a lead management list and come back to them.

Every few weeks engage with their content and reach out to touch base. Once you build more rapport with your prospect you can re-invite them to a discovery call.

P.S. Do not limit yourself to the words used in this script. Simply follow the format to lead them to a discovery call. But get creative with your conversations with your prospect. You are not a bot, so don't act like one. Be a real human who actually cares about helping your ideal client achieve their goals. Make a genuine conversation.
