

DAILY ROUTINE

Daily Routine

- In this lesson we are going to talk about what you should be doing on a daily basis to grow your business
- What are going to cover is: the top 3 priorities of growth, the perfect daily routine to make money, and how to ensure you execute consistently

- This lesson came as a observation from PTBI 1.0
- We were able to provide a ton of info and support, but where we lacked most was structure
- We relied heavily of the coach to lead themselves on what to do when

Daily Routine

- Our coaches saw great results, but we knew there was a gap between information and application
- Since then, I've worked with coaches to discover what the best daily routine is to grow your business (difference between growth and maintain).

Daily Routine

- I've also simplified your business into 3 priorities to focus on every single day
- This way you no longer have to worry about "What do I do today to grow my business?"
- Instead, you will have a very clear order of tasks that you will complete daily.

TOP 3 DAILY PRIORITIES

Daily Routine

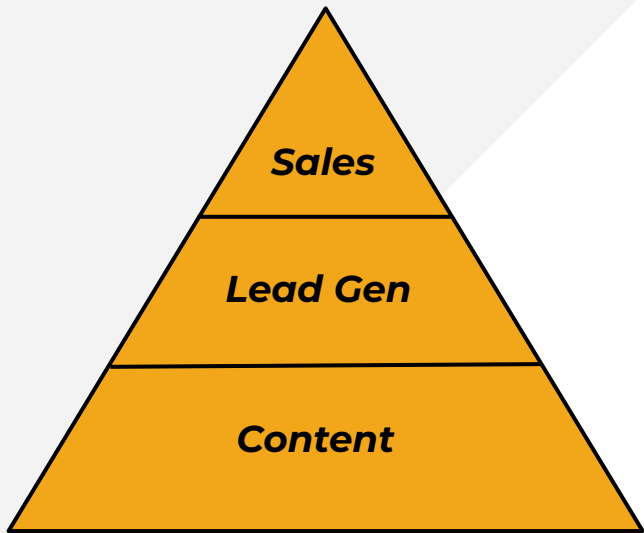

- First thing to understand is that the number 1 thing that's going to grow your business is sales
- When you make sales you will grow your roster AND make money
- The number 1 priority in your business for growth is taking sales calls

Daily Routine

- You should be taking sales calls for your business every single day
- If you do not have sales calls then your second priority is lead generation
- When you dont have sales calls on the calendar then you need to put sales calls on the calendar by generating leads.

Daily Routine

- If you don't have any leads to generate for sales calls, your third priority is to create leads by posting content.
- Posting content will create engagement that you will use to generate leads and book sales calls

Top 3 Priorities for Business Growth

- Priority 1: Sales Calls to generate income
- Priority 2: Lead Gen to produce Sales Calls
- Priority 3: Posting Content to produce Leads

Daily Routine

- What a sales call is for your business is the opportunity to make money
- If you have a sales call, you give yourself the opportunity to make money
- The more sales calls you have, the more opportunity you have to make more money

Daily Routine

- If you do not have sales calls, the chances of you making money that day is 0: No sales calls means you do not have the opportunity to make money
- When you wake up you should ask yourself, how many sales calls do I have today?: When you go to sleep you should ask yourself, how many sales calls do I have tomorrow?

Daily Routine

- I interviewed a coach doing $20k/mo in his business and asked him what his daily priorities are and he said that if he doesn't have a call booked for the next day he's not going to sleep until he does. He'll stay up past midnight until he has a call on the books

Daily Routine

- I'm the same way in my business, if I have sales calls on the books I'm relaxed knowing I have the opportunity to make money
- If I don't have sales calls on the books then I know that I need to work to put calls on the books.
- No calls = Chaos : Calls = Peace

Daily Routine

- If there happens to be no calls on your calendar, then your priority for the day is to generate leads
- Use the DM Outreach script and process to find leads online, and start conversations to book calls
- If I don't have any sales calls on my calendar, then I'm generating leads to put them on

Daily Routine

- If there are no leads for you to generate then your priority needs to be creating content and posting content.
- Creating/Posting content will create engagement on your page that you can then use to create conversations

Daily Routine

- A general rule of thumb, if you see me on my stories posting calls to actions, polls, or engagement pieces, its because I dont have any sales calls and I'm showing up to generate leads
- If you dont see me posting anything, its because I have a full calendar of sales calls.

Daily Routine

- Those are the 3 things you should be focusing on every single day to grow your business
- Now what we are going to talk about is a daily routine to ensure you have a consistent schedule to execute those 3 priorities

Daily Routine

- When it comes to creating a daily routine, you need to understand focus, creativity, attention, and diminishing returns
- One reason why you might be putting off important work and procrastinating is because you are not setting yourself up productively time wise

Daily Routine

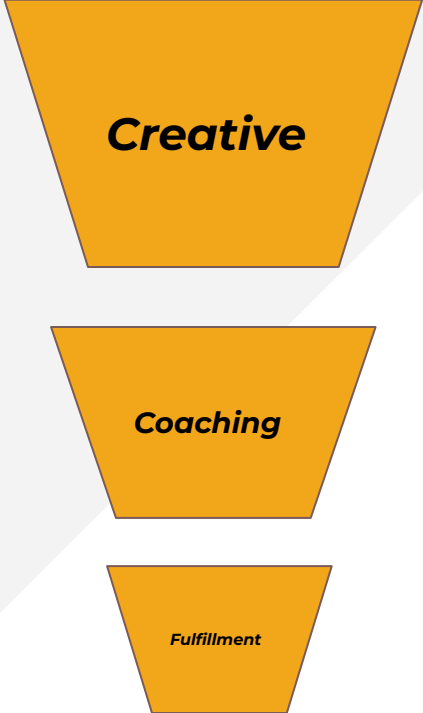

- Not all work is created equal. Some types of work require more brain power than others
- If you use your brain power on menial tasks you are going to drain your energy, focus, and attention
- Switching to the next task will be more difficult to complete

Daily Routine

- You need to be intentional about what tasks to complete first that's most important, but will also require the most energy
- Then shift to a task that will require less energy and so on. That way you can start the day by completing big tasks first and moving to small tasks as your attention decreases

Daily Routine

- The three types of work for a coach are creative, coaching, and fulfillment
- Creative is the most demanding as it requires your brain to think big and open to create ideas
- Coaching is second as it requires you to be alert as you connect and speak with others
- Fulfillment is the least demanding as it is work you can complete on autopilot

Creative

Coaching

Fulfillment

Types of work for a coach

- Creative: creating/posting social media content, showing up on stories, goal setting, planning the day
- Coaching: lead gen, sales calls, coaching calls, talking to people
- Fulfillment: writing workout plans, meal plans, adjusting protocols, answering emails/texts

Daily Routine

- Think about tiers of salaries in corporate environments: The CEO gets paid $$$ for creative ideas, the managers gets paid $$ for leading people, the representatives get paid $ for completing simple tasks.
- The tasks that require more brain power need to be completed first and descend in order.

Daily Routine

- Creative work comes first since it requires the most energy and mental space to think of new ideas and share information
- Its easier to be creative when you havent had outside influences enter your mind yet (imposter syndrome, comparison, limiting beliefs)
- You can relax knowing you did your most important work first

Daily Routine

- Coaching work comes second because it requires presence and alertness
- Coaching work involves speaking to people (lead gen, sales, coaching) so your attention and responses are required
- Coaching doesn't require you to be creative but it can be draining, don't save your calls for the end of the day

Daily Routine

- Fulfillment is last because it doesn't require you to use much brain power or be alert
- Things like emails, programming, editing content, check-ins
- It's easy to complete these tasks on low brain power
- Grab a snack, put some music on, and vibe out.

Daily Routine

- Now that we understand the different types of tasks and order of importance its time to create a daily routine to help you complete the top 3 priorities on a daily basis.
- Creative tasks early to late morning
- Coaching tasks early to late afternoon
- Fulfillment tasks early to late evening.

Daily Routine

- How this will look on a daily schedule for an online coach
- 6am-10am: Goal setting/planning, creating/posting content
- 10am-4pm: Lead generation, sales calls, coaching calls
- 4pm-8pm: check-ins, programming, emails/texts

Daily Routine

- I provided wide time windows for you to use discretion. Everyone will be different in their own wake up, lunch, and sleep schedule
- But the general idea is to complete those tasks in that order every single day.
- Following this schedule you will be creating content, generating leads, and taking sales calls.

Daily Routine

- This daily routine ensures you are completing the top 3 priorities in your business on a daily basis.
- In the beginning you aren't going to have a lot of sales calls or leads to generate.
- Most of your time will be spent creating/posting content

Daily Routine

- As you create and post content you will start to generate more leads
- These leads will turn into sales calls
- As you maintain the daily routine of creating content and generating leads you will build momentum to be booking sales calls on a daily basis.

Daily Routine

- As you grow into your business, you will need to treat your daily routine as a job.
- My personal schedule as a business owner is
- 7am: wakeup
- 8-9am: posting/creating content
- 9-10am: generating leads
- 10-5pm: coaching/sales calls
- 5-8pm: wrap up

Daily Routine

- If you are working a 9-5, or are in school your day could look like: posting/creating content before work, generating leads during lunch, taking calls after work.
- Treat your routine like a 9-5. Do not let any distractions deter you from your routine
- You wouldn't go grab a drink with your friends while you were at work, treat your biz the same

Daily Routine

- Last thing, understand that every day will have an ebb and flow
- There will be days where you book a ton of sales calls, and there will be days where you book no sales calls.
- This doesn't mean that it's hard, you have to stay consistent

Daily Routine

- It's like surfing. Some days you will go out when the surf is great; some days you will go out and the surf is terrible
- But you don't let those conditions taint your view on surfing. You understand that some days are better than others.

Daily Routine

- The same is true for call booking and sales
- Approach your daily routine without attachment to the outcome and execute as if it's your job
- This will build consistency and your consistency will produce the result.
