

CHECK-IN PROCESS

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- When you coach online, you will not be meeting with your clients in person. So there needs to be a level of accountability and monitorization
- This is where client check-ins come in
- Client check-ins are the process in which you check-in, monitor, adjust, and keep your clients accountable

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- What we're going to do in this lesson is show you exactly how to structure/execute your client check-ins efficiently, this way you can manage a high volume of clientele, deliver great results, and do so in a way that is stress-free

WHAT YOU NEED

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- There's a few things you will need as a coach from your client
- 1) A check in form
- 2) Progress pictures
- 3) Data: weight, lifts, nutrition

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- The check-in form is a weekly form your clients will fill out to report their progress and bio-feedback
- This will give you the updates you need as a coach to adjust/update their plan
- With this, you will be able to get an overview of how your client is doing week to week

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- Your check-in form should be short and sweet
- To increase adherence with client check-ins week to week reduce the friction your client faces by decreasing the amount of questions on your check-in form to the bare necessities
- Try to think of all the necessary questions you need in order for you to know how your client is doing

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- I recommend putting your check-in form in your welcome packet or send it to your client after their first week (you can set this up as an automated message in the Client Management System)
- You only need to send them the check-in form once as they will be responding to the same questions every week

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- Here's an example of a client check-in form
- With this example of a check-in form, your client will admit to the areas in which they are struggling and where they need help improving
- You will be able to collect most feedback that you will need in order to make a proper judgement call

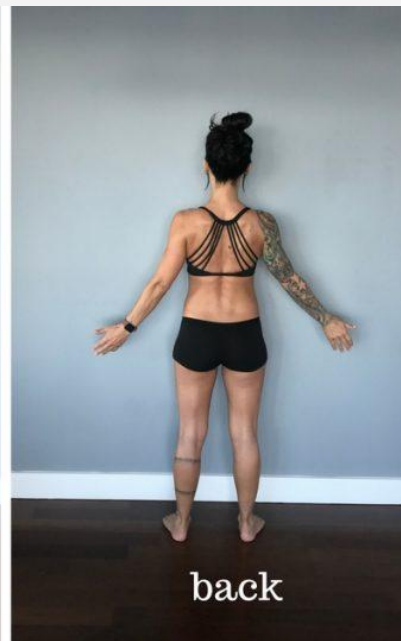

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- If there are any red flags in your clients check-in you can also request more information or set up a 1-1 call
- The next thing you will need is progress pictures
- Progress photos should be submitted with good lighting and show full body

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- You need to be able to see the changes from your client
- Best progress photos are photos taken of them, with their phone set up on a tripod or something similar
- You will need to instruct your clients on how to take good progress photos

GOOD PROGRESS PHOTOS

BAD PROGRESS PHOTOS

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- With good progress photos combined with a client check-in form you will be able to visually see the progress they are making, and point out noticeable changes to your client
- Give your instructions for progress photos with your client check-in form

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- The last thing that you will need from your clients is data
- This is optional as it increases friction and requires your clients to track consistently
- Most of the time you can make adjustments with just the check-in form and the progress photos

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- With data your clients will track their workouts, nutrition, weight, and habits in the Client Management System
- You will be able to access their tracking data here to review how they are progressing in their workouts and goals
- You will need to instruct your clients how to track their data in the Client Management System

STRUCTURED CHECK-INS

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- To structure your check in days choose 1-2 days a week you are going to dedicate to client check-ins
- As you start you will only need 1 but as you grow you will carry over into 2
- I recommend doing check ins during the week if you're full-time

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- When you decide your check-in day, make sure all of your clients are aware when check-ins are due
- To decrease the chances of check-ins being submitted late, make them due the night before or morning of with a cut-off time.

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- You want to schedule it so that when you're ready to sit down and do check-ins, they are already there waiting for you in que
- If a client is late meaning they submit a check-in after your cut-off time, have a policy that late check-ins will be responded to when best convenient

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- Have your client submit their check-in through the communication channel
- Because you collect so much information on the front end of check-ins, you will likely be able to complete a client in 10-15 minutes
- To respond to a client check-in record a loom video, or audio message

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- Recording a Loom video or audio message is faster, provides more valuable feedback, and builds a stronger relationship with your client
- If your client has more questions you can answer them when convenient, if they need to schedule a call you can do so here as well

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- Once you complete the check in move on to the next client in que
- Make a note of the adjustments needed to be made for each client and update their plans once all check-ins are complete
- It is easier to stay in flow when you do all check-ins first and make all adjustments after

CHECK-IN PROCESS

- If someone is late to submit a check-in make sure they understand your late policy (if you have one)
- You are not obligated to respond to a check-in at 5pm because someone sent it late.
- You are allowed to get back to it the next day
