

SPERAT INFESTES

SPERAT INFESTES

- Sperat infested is a latin motto that means: “In times of adversity, live in hope; in times of prosperity, live in fear”
- This motto is great because it helps you foresee the cycles of life and business
- During our life we consistently cycle between good times and bad times

SPERAT INFESTES

- And though we'd all love to stay consistently at the good times, it's not the way life works
- But we need the bad in order to enjoy the good, its what gives us context and appreciation for the good times
- Its like surfing, not everyday is going to be a good surf day. But you need the bad days in order to appreciate the good ones

SPERAT INFESTES

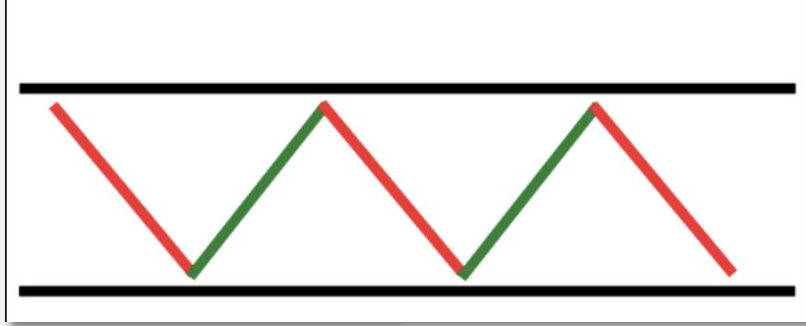

- What this motto means really is that when things are going tough, stay positive and keep faith that things will get better (because they will)
- When things are going good, enjoy those times but also prepare yourself for tough times to circle back around (because they will)

- The first step is to accept the cycles of life
- We are going to oscillate; ebb and flow
- There will be hard times and good times, especially as you grow your business
- But the goal should be to grow through those phases and reach new higher highs and higher lows

SPERAT INFESTES

- Instead of oscillating between the two same points in life
- We should be ascending like a stock chart through life oscillating between higher points each time
- With each new high point in life you are higher than you've ever been With each new low point in life you are not as low as you were

SPERAT INFESTES

- As you grow you will reach higher highs, but that doesn't mean that the lows won't come
- To help this you must emotionally brace yourself and mentally stay consistent
- What staying consistent mentally does is help you not become emotionally volatile as your business grows

SPERAT INFESTES

- It is very easy to get excited off a new client, but just as easy to get disappointed by a client rejection
- Detach your emotions from your business results in order to stay emotionally consistent
- Otherwise you are going to ride every single volatile bump in the road

SPERAT INFESTES

- Business is tough, but feeling every single bump in the road emotionally will make it even harder
- To help you detach yourself from the emotional day to day, we built a daily journaling exercise to keep you focused and grounded (found in daily mindset exercise lesson)

- When you do get wins allow yourself to ride the wave
- Give yourself a pat on the back and feel good about your success
- Just dont expect consistent validation from your success

SPERAT INFESTES

- When you expect validation from your success then you will build the habit of only feeling good enough when you are winning
- This is dangerous because like we mentioned before success oscillates
- When you get validation from success and you dont win, then your ego will be crushed. Not good

SPERAT INFESTES

- So when you get a win for the day, feel good about it but dont let it go to your head
- And when you take an L for the day, remember that it is part of the process and success is around the corner
- Ride the wave

SPERAT INFESTES

- Another important quote: “People dont have business problems, they have personal problems that manifest into their business”
- I have personally seen business go down and it is usually always because of poor leadership
- The business owner couldnt separate their business and personal affairs

SPERAT INFESTES

- When you are a business owner, you are the business
- So your health and wellbeing are the business's health and well-being
- When you're sick the business is sick
- This is true for mental health as well

SPERAT INFESTES

- You need to take care of yourself first
- If you find yourself in a rough season of life, do what you need to to get your mind right first
- If you're going through a breakup, this will effect your business
- If you're stressed about family, this will effect your business

SPERAT INFESTES

- Your personal life problems will be obstacles to face in your business as well
- Learn how to separate the two emotionally so you can show up and execute on growing your business, while also handling personal life problems

SPERAT INFESTES

- Try not to let personal life problems get in the way of executing on your business
- Think of your business like your job, you wouldn't just not show up to work one day, so why would you do that to your business?
- It's okay to have personal life challenges, we all have them. Learn how to overcome them while also growing the business

SPERAT INFESTES

- The key to staying on track with consistent growth is being able to grow your business through volatility
- This will require discipline of emotions
- Now I'm not saying you need to turn your emotions off like a robot, I encourage you to shine genuinely through your business

SPERAT INFESTES

- But dont seek validation through success and dont be so hard on yourself in times of adversity
- The highs and lows are normal, and you are going to face them
- Embrace both sides as part of the journey
- Learn not to allow your personal life problems seep into your business

SPERAT INFESTES

- Separate the two and take care of yourself emotionally, its very important
- Most importantly, be patient with your journey
- Building a business is simple but it does take a long time
- Our best students are seeing their best months at month 6-12

SPERAT INFESTES

- So it really does take a long time to build momentum
- Be patient in getting to the destination, be aggressive in the action you take today
- There will be good times and there will be bad times, remain steady through the waves

SPERAT INFESTES

- If you keep this mindset you will be able to stick with this long term
