

DISCOVERY CALL

DISCOVERY CALL

- The discovery call is the second step in the sales process after you have had a conversation with your prospect
- The discovery call is the free call to offer support, but serves a much bigger role than a simple conversation

DISCOVERY CALL

- What the disco call does is bridge the gap from having a total stranger uninterested in your offer to having an interested qualified lead showing up to your sales call
- It allows your prospect to arrive to the sales call in the right headspace ready for the sale

DISCOVERY CALL

- The discovery call also qualifies your prospect
- This way you can guarantee you are hopping on sales calls with people who are a good fit for your program
- The discovery call is only 10 minutes because we want this first step to be an easy “yes” for the prospect

DISCOVERY CALL

- If we offered an hour long sales call from the DMs, no one would want to say yes to that
- So the discovery call is a micro step in the right direction to lead your prospect one step closer to the sales call
- It also allows you to plant a seed of opportunity for your prospect that will grow up until the sales call

DISCOVERY CALL

- Most importantly, the discovery call allows you to build trust with your potential client as they are receiving free value and support
- Once they have received the law of reciprocity will likely have them stay to learn more about what you do and how you can help
- They will be more likely to hire someone they now trust

DISCO PSYCHOLOGY

DISCOVERY CALL

- There's 2 important stories I like to share to teach the psychology of the discovery call
- The first is a story on how to get a big ask out of a stranger with small microcommitments
- The second is how to prime someones mind to be in a buying state when they arrive at the sales call

DISCO PSYCHOLOGY

- The Hobbit
- How do 9 dwarves enter a strangers house?: 1 at a time with micro commitments
- This shows how you can lead someone to a big ask by taking small steps in the right direction

DISCO PSYCHOLOGY

- Lotion Lady at the mall
- How do you get someone in the buying state for something they were uninterested in before?: Give them a free sample and ask them to return for more
- This primes their mindset to be more open to learning about the opportunity (in this case your offer)

DISCOVERY CALL

- With these 2 stories in mind, we now know why the discovery call is so important to lead our prospects to the sales call
- Now lets break down the Discovery Call Framework

DISCO FRAMEWORK

SITUATION

PROCESS BREAKDOWN

INVITE TO SALES CALL

DISCO PSYCHOLOGY

- Pre-Call Confirmation
- Set Intention
- Current/Desired Situation
- Process Breakdown
- Invite To Sales Call

DISCOVERY CALL

- The pre-call confirmation is the first step in the discovery call where you send a confirmation text to confirm with your prospect
- This step is very important as it locks in the discovery call for that date
- Sending a pre-call confirmation will remind your prospect of the call, and keeps the conversation alive leading up to the call

DISCOVERY CALL

- Think about when you ask out your crush. You wouldn't wait until the actual date and hope they show up
- You text them leading up to the date to build up anticipation
- You should do this with your prospects as well

DISCOVERY CALL

- Your pre-call confirmation can be sent out the morning of the call and 30 minutes before the call
- For the morning message say: “Hey ___, hope you have an amazing day. We have a call scheduled at XYZ time, can you confirm?”
- Once they confirm say: “Amazing! I’m looking forward to it!”

DISCOVERY CALL

- 30 minutes before the call you should send out one more message saying: “Ready to chat in 30?”
- If they do not respond to either pre-call confirmations, then it’s a possibility they might ghost the disco call.
- We will cover what to do in that case at the end of this lesson

DISCOVERY CALL

- Once they confirm the discovery call, call them at the scheduled time
- When they pick up create some small talk to break the ice
- This should take no longer than 2 minutes:
- “Where are you from?”
- “How’s your week been?”
- Etc.

DISCOVERY CALL

- After 1 or 2 exchanges back and forth its time to set the intention
- Setting the intention allows you to take control over the call, pre-frame the conversation on where it will go, and direct it

DISCOVERY CALL

- The goal of the discovery call here is to 1) learn more about your prospect. 2) offer your prospect free advice. 3) Invite them to the sales call
- So this is the intention we are going to set in this section of the disco call
- And again, with every response you make:
Acknowledge, Respond, Ask.

DISCOVERY CALL

- You'll say: "Awesome, I'm so glad to hear your weeks been going well. What I'd like to do on this call is learn more about you and your goals. From there I'll see exactly how I can help you reach your goals. And if you're interested towards the end of the call we can discuss further ways I can help. Does that sound good?"

DISCOVERY CALL

- From here they will respond with: “Yes that sounds good” or some rendition
- You will need to lead the conversation from here since you asserted yourself in taking control
- From here its time to go into understanding their current/desired situation.
- Where are they now and where would they like to go?

DISCOVERY CALL

- Once you discover this you can offer your solution as the vehicle to take them from A to B
- This will sound similar to the same questions and answers given in the DM Outreach conversation, but its important for your client to repeat it outloud to you.
- Saying it over the phone also allows you to dig deeper than you can go over text

DISCOVERY CALL

- To execute this you'll say: "Tell me about yourself. What are you looking to achieve? What are your goals? And what's motivating you to get there?"
- You can also ask these questions one at a time to get a more in depth response from your potential client

DISCOVERY CALL

- When they respond dig deeper by asking more probing questions:
- “When you said _____, what did you mean?”
- “Can you explain further why _____ is important?”
- “What does that feel like?”
- You want to ask as many probing questions as you can to fully understand their situation

DISCOVERY CALL

- They'll say something like: "My current goal right now is to lose weight. I trained alot last year but my schedule got busy. I havent been motivated to get back into the gym even though I need to."
- You'll say: "I understand how busy life can get. I've even been there myself. Why is it important that you get back in the gym?"

DISCOVERY CALL

- They'll say: "I want to feel confident, I want to be able to wear what I love."
- You'll say: "What does confident look like to you?"
- You can continue asking probing questions until you fully understand their desired situation

DISCOVERY CALL

- You want to be able to repeat their desired situation back to them better than they can describe it themselves
- Once you fully understand their desired situation, ask them to explain their current situation
- You'll say: "So where exactly are you now? What does your current situation look like? What have you tried in the past?"

DISCOVERY CALL

- Repeat the same process as desired situation
- What you want to do here is discover where you can help them bridge the gap between where they are and where they want to be
- Continue asking probing questions to get deeper responses
- This is a good time to learn more about their lifestyle

DISCOVERY CALL

- They'll say: "Right now I have a gym membership, but I don't use it. I have a few weights at home. And I don't eat healthy."
- You could say: "What do you think is keeping you stuck?"
- They'll say: "It's my motivation, when I get home from work I'm too tired to move"

DISCOVERY CALL

- You could say: “What does your work schedule look like? And what do you do?”
- Continue this process until you fully understand their current situation
- Remember the doctor’s diagnosis. We do not want to offer support until we know exactly what’s best to help this potential client

DISCOVERY CALL

- Use this time to also qualify the prospect for your program
- Ask them questions that will give you an understanding on their ready, willing, and able-ness to start
- These questions will allow you to see if they are looking for a solution

DISCOVERY CALL

- These questions include:
- “Are you open to receiving help with these goals?”
- Are you currently looking for a solution?”
- “Whats keeping you from reaching your goals on your own?”
- “Is now a good time for you to take action?”

DISCOVERY CALL

- Your prospects answer to these questions will determine if they're qualified for your program
- If they say: "Yes, I'm open to receiving help. Yes, I'm looking for a solution. Now is a good time to take action" they're qualified to move to the next step

DISCOVERY CALL

- The goal here is to filter out those who ARE looking for a solution and are open to receiving help
- After you spend some time learning about their desired/current situation it's time to go into your process breakdown

DISCOVERY CALL

- Process breakdown is where you will give your potential client the free advice they were looking for
- But the way you position this information positions you as the expert with the solution
- To do this effectively, first take control of the conversation by asking permission to speak

DISCOVERY CALL

- You don't want to start talking over your prospect, they will listen if you ask them permission to speak
- You'll say: "Awesome, I feel I have a good understanding on where you are and where you want to go. I'd love to share what I do and how I can help. Does that sound good?"

DISCOVERY CALL

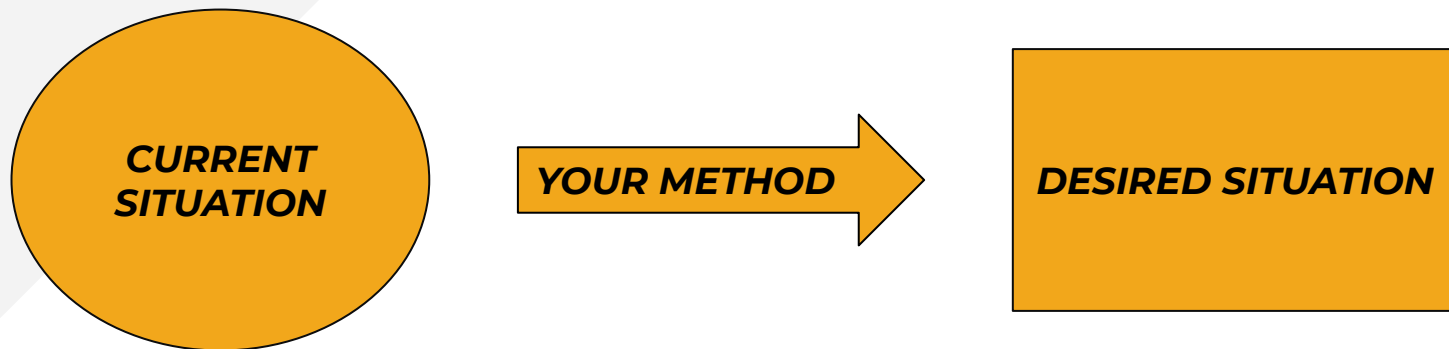

- When you are leading your prospect further and further down the sales call script, ending your speech with the sentence “Sound good?” or “Sound fair enough” or “How does that sound?” helps you become more agreeable
- This allows your prospect to agree to what your saying, making them more willing to venture further

DISCOVERY CALL

- When you ask permission your prospect will understand that its time to move to the next step
- This is how you can continue moving the conversation down the script without getting stuck
- In the process breakdown you want to give an overview of you method and pillars to success

DISCOVERY CALL

- Recall back to your offer: what was your method for each pillar?: nutrition, training, accountability, education
- You want to explain your method as the solution for your prospect to get from their current situation to their desired situation

DISCOVERY CALL

- For the sake of this example we will use:
- Nutrition - Macros
- Training - Progressive Overload
- Accountability - 1-1 coaching
- Education - Resources

DISCOVERY CALL

- You'll say: "So based on what you've told me, you're looking to lose weight, get back in the gym, and feel better in your body, correct? Perfect, what I've seen work the best is breaking your fitness journey into 4 key pillars. These pillars are going to allow you to have an all encompassing fitness transformation..."

DISCOVERY CALL

- “These pillars are nutrition, training, accountability, and education. You see you can have a few pieces, but without all 4 its difficult to experience a full successful transformation. What we do in (Your Program) is we have a specific method for each pillar that guarantee’s success. Is it okay if I break those down for you?”

DISCOVERY CALL

- “Perfect. The first pillar is nutrition and what we do is focus on custom macros. You’ll need macros that fit your goal, or a meal plan that fits your goal. Ultimately we’ll need you to focus on eating the right amounts of foods for your goal. Next pillar is training and what we do is focus on progressive overload...

DISCOVERY CALL

- “Here we want to make sure you are progressing efficiently in your workouts so you can get stronger each week. The next pillar is accountability. It is easier to get in shape when you have an accountability partner and someone to keep you motivated. We do this through coaching and Having someone to check in with you

DISCOVERY CALL

- “Lastly our final pillar is education. We find that when our clients are educated on fitness and nutrition and understand the science behind why theyre doing what theyre doing they see better results. Do you have any questions on how this process works?”

DISCOVERY CALL

- After every long winded section, you should stop and do a temp check
- A temp check is when you answer any and all questions they might have about what you just spoke about.
- You want to squash all of these questions as you go so you can ensure objections don't build up.

DISCOVERY CALL

- To ask for a temp check you'll say: "Do you have any questions or concerns about what we just talked about?"
- They may or may not have a question, you'll answer here before moving on
- By breaking down your pillars for them you are offering them a solution to reach their goals

DISCOVERY CALL

- This is valuable to them, and you are fulfilling your agreement in giving free advice
- The free advice is introducing them to the pillars of your business and helping them understand that is what they need to be successful
- The key here is giving them the what and why. You tell them what they need to do and why they need to do it

DISCOVERY CALL

- You do not need to go into how to do all these things, this is what you are going to be offering in your program
- All you need to do is help your potential client see that YOUR solution is how they will get to their goals

DISCOVERY CALL

- You want your potential client to have a good understanding of exactly what they need to do. So good that they could go do it on their own at this point
- But this is where you'll offer even more support
- This is the part in the discovery call where you will invite them to a sales call by showing them how you can help further

DISCOVERY CALL

- To do this, invite them to a call where you can further explain exactly how you can help them specifically
- You'll say: "Awesome! I'm glad you found this helpful. I actually work with clients and help them implement these 4 pillars to get similar results that your looking for. Would you be interested in learning more about how I can help?..."

DISCOVERY CALL

- “What we can do is set up a second call over Zoom and I can walk you through step by step what you need to do. Does that sound good?”
- Remember to build enough value on this second call for your potential client to say yes to. Giving them a session where you walk them through how they can achieve their goals is valuable

DISCOVERY CALL

- This is also where you filter out those who are interested
- This way they people who say yes are people who want to learn more and are actively choosing to take that next step with you
- When they say yes book them in the same way as before, offer a time and plug in their info yourself

DISCOVERY CALL

- Once the call is booked is where you will first handle any objections they could possibly have
- We'll dive deeper into this in the "Objection Handling" lesson
- But to get this step started you want to ask: "If everything looks good and you like what you see, would you be opposed to working together?"

DISCOVERY CALL

- “Would there be anything that would hold you back from getting started?”
- What your looking for here is any red flags or objections that may come up at the end of the sales call
- Are they moving soon? Are they concerned about finances? Are they limited on time? Do they need to talk to a partner? Etc.

DISCOVERY CALL

- This allows you to see and prepare for what kind of objections they will have at the end of the next call
- Let's what through quickly on how to prepare for each objection

DISCOVERY CALL

- If their concern is about finances and they ask what the price is or that their budget is tight, say this: “I understand that finances will be an issue, we offer payment plans. If we can come up with a payment plan to makes sense for you would that work?”

DISCOVERY CALL

- If they need to talk to a partner say: “I’d love for you and your partner to be on the same page. Would you mind talking to them tonight so they know you’ll be on this call?”
- If their concern is time say: “If we can customize a solution that would work with your busy schedule would you be able to commit?”

DISCOVERY CALL

- The key to solving objections early is discovering which objections will be apparent on the sales call
- Their concerns about the program on the disco will likely be their concerns about the program on the sales call

DISCOVERY CALL

- Once you identify early on what objections they are going to have, you can better prepare a solution that will help you overcome that objection on the sales call
- Now you've made it all the way through the discovery call and you've booked the sales call

DISCO PSYCHOLOGY

- Pre-Call Confirmation

- Invite To Sales Call

TROUBLE SHOOTING

DISCOVERY CALL

- Discovery calls won't always be perfect there will be some hiccups along the way, so lets dive into a few common ones
- What if you potential client doesnt confirm and ghosts the discovery call?
- What you should do here is still call at the scheduled time

DISCOVERY CALL

- I've seen cases where people get busy with work and aren't available until the minute of the call and are then able to pick up
- So you should still call even if they don't confirm
- If they don't pick up ring a couple times 2-3x tops.
- On the last ring leave a voice message

DISCOVERY CALL

- Your voice message should say who you are, what youre calling about, and ask to reschedule
- Then send a text message explaining that they missed their scheduled call time and if they would like to reschedule
- After this leave the ball in their court. If they get back to you great, if not move on.

DISCOVERY CALL

- Sometimes your prospect won't be qualified or ready for the sales call
- Sometimes they might have a vacation coming up, or will be busy in school until finals
- In these situations hold off on the sales call and schedule it when it makes sense

DISCOVERY CALL

- If the prospect is unqualified, meaning they're not a good fit you can easily end the call after you offer free advice. They do not need to proceed to the next step if you do not feel it's best for them.

DISCOVERY CALL

- If they say they are not interested in the sales call, dig a little deeper into what their objection is.
- Don't try to push them or convince them to take the call, just figure out what the roadblock is
- If you discover it's something you can help them overcome, like a financial objection or time objection then negotiate. If they're genuinely not interested then respect their decision

DISCOVERY CALL

- If you get someone who talks a lot, instead of interrupting them, you'll want to catch them when they break and lead them to the next step in the conversation with a question
- Always lead with questions. So before you can get carried away off topic, acknowledge, respond, and ask

DISCOVERY CALL

- Lastly, dont skip the discovery call
- The discovery call is in the process for a reason
- It's just as important for your potential client to build trust with you than it is for you to qualify
- Even if the lead is inbound and is begging ready to sign up, still take the discovery call

DISCOVERY CALL

- Where trainers fall short in their sales is when they try to shorten the process by skipping essential steps like the discovery call
- They think because a lead is inbound or hot they can go straight to the sales call
- Do not do this, stay loyal to the process as its proven to get your potential client in the right state of mind for the sale

DISCOVERY CALL

- The sale is made through the process
- Discovery calls will take practice so I recommend watching this lesson multiple times and setting up mock calls with other coaches in the group
- The more calls you practice with the better you'll become
- Sales is a skill, practice and develop
