

CONTENT CREATION 101

What's the GOAL?

- Connection/ Community
- Growth
- Nurture
- Authority Building
- Marketing

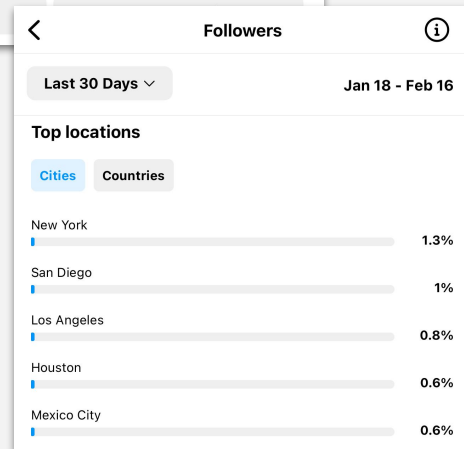

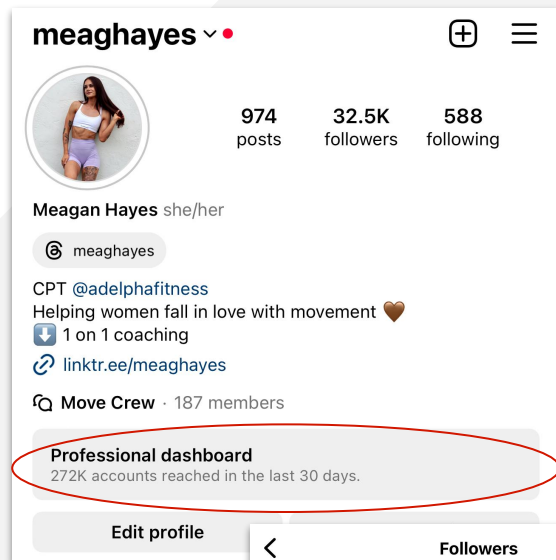

Where to Start

Research

- Knowing what to posts comes from noticing what's successful
 - Niche specific!
- Research is NOT doom scrolling
- Curate your feed by interacting with content related to your niche and industry
 - Looking for ideas gets easier when your feed is tailored to you

Testing

- Discover what your audience likes
 - Be willing to test different content styles (voiceovers, vlogs, trends, longer captions, swipe posts, etc.)
 - Pay attention to WHERE your audience is coming from (professional dashboard -> total followers)
- Test 3 times - just because something doesn't perform well the first time doesn't mean it'll never work
 - Check your insights! (more on this later)

Core Values

- Being clear on what you stand for, it will help you develop a message/branding that will easily attract your ideal client
 - Your vibe attracts your tribe
- Write out 3-4 things you want to INSPIRE in people
 - Ex) I want to inspire people to try many types of movement so they find something they fall in love with
 - Reels showing hybrid training, captions encouraging people to try new things, using transformation trends to SHOW this

Types of Content

Educational

- This is usually the EASIEST type for most coaches to make as we are natural teachers
 - Pro: can help build authority and nurture audience, endless ideas/can teach the same thing multiple times and still have impact
 - Con: usually gets less engagement, doesn't have high virality potential unless production value is HIGH (and even then it's less likely to get engagement unless controversial)

Personal/Connection-based

- Sharing a personal story, current goal, opinion on a topic, or anything that allows your audience to RELATE to you can help them feel more connected you as a human AND a coach
 - Pro: huge trust builder, higher virality potential, easy to convert trends into this type of content
 - Con: Not always something that directly ties back to coaching, so use it strategically

Trendy/Humorous

- This type of content is great for the creative person who likes to make people smile or try new things
 - Pro: Really high virality potential, very entertaining and can build a fun/casual relationship with audience
 - Con: More of an “influencer” approach than a coach approach, too much of this may harm your position as an authority in the eyes of your audience

Saveable/Shareable

- Workouts, memes, recipes, and things that people will “save” or “share” on the story in agreement can play really well into the IG algorithm
 - Pro: Easy to create such as full workout routines, recipe videos, swipe posts made in canva. Can have good virality/engagement potential
 - Con: Can be hit and miss, more of an “influencer” style post so may not convert directly

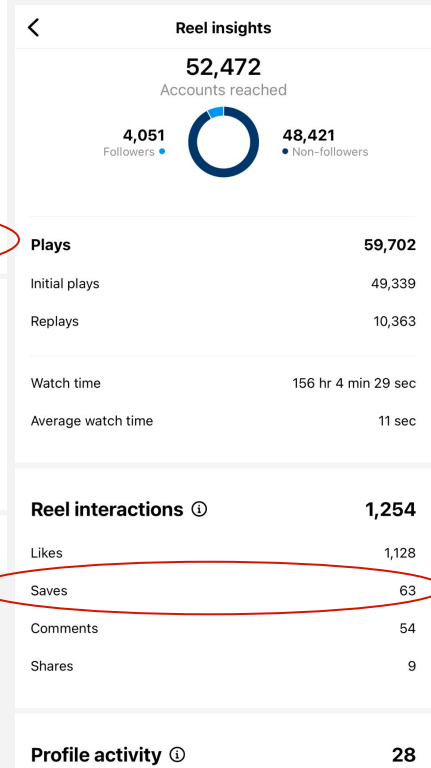

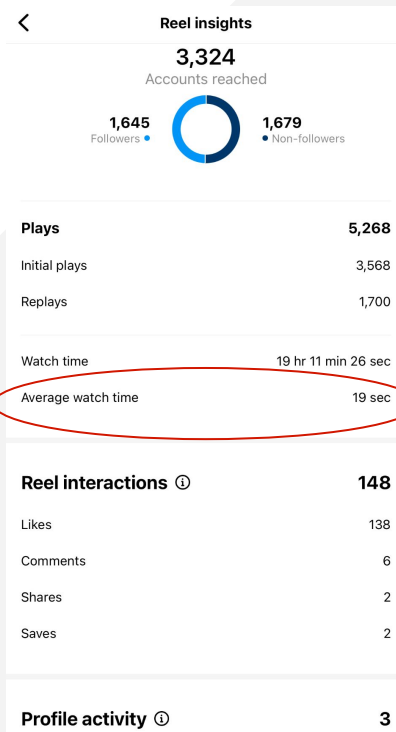

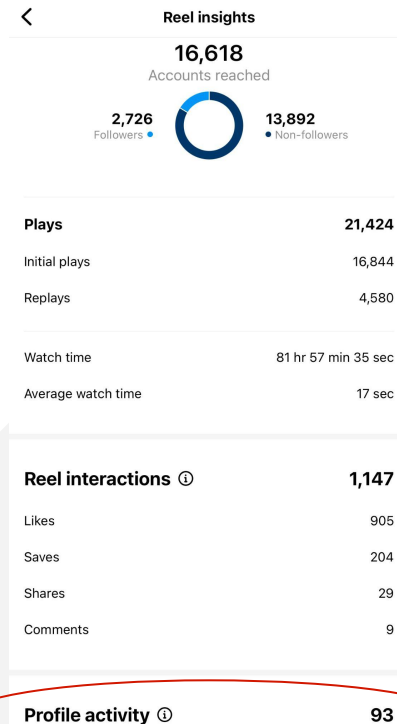

Motivational

- Although this type of content is easy to make - using a trending sound with a quote or just hyping people up - it can come across flat if true value isn't included somehow
 - Pro: Easy to create, potentially impactful
 - Con: Doesn't always inspire much engagement or provide true value to the audience you're trying to nurture.

Assessing Insights

Insight Categories

- Average Watch Time
- Saves
- Shares
- Profile Activity/Follows

How To Effectively Use Insights

- Don't try to optimize every category on every post
 - Views don't always correlate to saves and followers
- If watch time is low, work on your hooks
 - Capture attention and KEEP it by giving them something to expect or keeping entertainment/value high
- When something does well, try to replicate the factors that made it work!
 - Did it elicit comments? Did people watch it several times? Was it saved due to educational value?
